FRANKLIN, Pa. (AP) — A frantic mother led her 10 young children through their flaming home searching for an escape route Sunday, but the terror-stricken youngsters balked at jumping from a second-story window and were killed.

Five die, 12 injured on Turnpike

WHITE HAVEN, Pa. (AP) — Five vehicles collided on the Northeast extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Sunday, killing five persons and injuring 12 others, police said.

The accident occurred about eight miles east of this Luzerne County town, where the left road cuts through a mountainous region.

Three passenger cars, a panel truck and a Jeep were involved, said police.

Two of the dead were identified as Fred W. Elkinton, 51, of Haddonfield, N.J., and Robert Sloan of Kingston, near Wilkes-Barre.

Police said that the three other dead were young women. Their bodies were taken to the Gaden-Huetten Hospital in nearby Lehigh.

The injured were treated at hospitals in Lehigh, Wilkes-Barre and Allentown.

Admitted with head injuries to the Lehigh hospital and later transferred to Sacred Heart Hospital in Allentown was Timothy Lynady of Scranton.

Mrs. Isadore Rosner of Philadelphia and her daughter, Dale, 19, were admitted to the Lehigh hospital. Both had multiple cuts and bruises.

Other details were not immediately available.

A man living in the rural house was also killed. Only the mother, Mary Grossman, 34, survived.

Mrs. Grossman ran about a quarter of a mile in subzero cold for help, barefoot and dressed only in nightclothes.

She ran to the home of neighbor Mrs. Loyal Blair.

"We got up at one o'clock and we saw a fire," said Mrs. Blair. "We heard someone at the door, and our neighbor was outside standing there in her nightgown and bare feet."

"She was crying, 'Oh, go quick and save my children! There's ten of them in there!'" said Mrs. Blair.

"I got her in the house and quieted her down," said Mrs. Blair. "Her hair was scorched. Her foot was hurting her."

"She kept walking back and forth crying, 'My ten kids. My ten kids!'"

Mrs. Blair said Mrs. Grossman told her this story: She roused the children, six boys and four girls aged 1 to 13, from their beds on the second floor and led them to the stairway. It was a mass of smoke and flames. She got them all into one room and urged them to jump through the window. They wouldn't. Mrs. Grossman jumped out and stood on the ground, pleading with them to follow.

"I imagine the smoke got to them right there," said Mrs. Blair.

"When we got there the whole place was on fire," said Fire Chief Dwayne Moore of Clintonville.

Helpless "There was nothing anybody could do," said fireman Richard Vogan. "It was done then."

The 24-year-old man killed in the fire wasn't identified immediately. Police said it would be at least a day before officials could search the rubble for the bodies.

Mrs. Grossman was admitted to Grove City Hospital for treatment of shock and listed in satisfactory condition.

The cause of the fire wasn't known. "It could be a coal furnace," said Moore, "but we don't know for sure."

South Carolina Negroes want guardsmen sent home

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (AP) — Eight hundred Orangeburg Negroes called Sunday for the immediate removal of National Guard troops from the city and made plans for a boycott of white businesses.

Reacting to last week's racial violence that left three dead and some 50 persons injured, the Negroes met Sunday and voted overwhelming approval of a broad civil rights campaign. Represented at the meeting was a cross section of the city's Negro community.

A statement adopted at the meeting also called for "immediate suspension of the law enforcement officers responsible for the police brutality" in the Thursday night incident that resulted in the three deaths.

Following the Negro meeting a dusk-to-dawn curfew went into effect at 5 p.m. Sunday for the third straight night. More than 600 National Guardsmen resumed patrols.

The Rev. I. D'Quincey Newman, South Carolina field director for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the boycott would begin at once.

"We will pursue the implementation of this program immediately with no nonsense," he said.

Several "declarations" included in the statement adopted at the meeting were approved last week by the student bodies of the city's two predominantly Negro colleges—South Carolina State College and church-supported Claflin College. The State College campus was the scene of Thursday night's violence.

The lengthy, wide-ranging statement called for the state to make adequate restitution to families of the three dead and the 50 injured.

No deadline was set for the boycott, which is to continue until action is taken to comply with a list of objectives. The list includes: placing Negroes in appointive county and city jobs; adding "an equitable number of Negroes" to local and state police forces; and elimination of the Orangeburg County dual school system together with full integration and the busing of pupils for racial balance.

"We call upon the total Negro community and other interested citizens to participate in a no-buying quarantine with shopping to be confined to Negro businesses," the statement said.

Dr. C. H. Thomas Jr., local NAACP president, said Negroes comprise 62.8 per cent of the population of Orangeburg County and their buying power in the city of 17,000 total population is between 60 and 70 per cent.

One of the objectives of the campaign also will be desegregation of the city's only bowling alley. Efforts to integrate the facility led to the student demonstrations and the violence last week.

The U.S. Command said eight secondary explosions were reported after a raid five miles north-northwest of Khe Sanh, indicating the big bombers probably hit an ammunition dump.

There were no reports of new ground fighting at Khe Sanh. But at Marine headquarters in Da Nang, eight Marines were wounded by Communist artillery and rocket fire.

Street fighting continued in Saigon and Hue for the 13th consecutive day. The U.S. Command claimed that allied forces had killed more than half of the 60,000 Communist troops thrown into the countryside offensive Jan. 3 against 35 major cities in South Vietnam.

A U.S. spokesman said Communist losses for the 12 days of fighting up to midnight Saturday were 30,795 killed and 5,728 captured. Allied losses were put at 2,149 killed and 12,831 wounded.

The breakdown of allied casualties included 973 Americans killed and 4,874 wounded; 2,119 South Vietnamese killed and 7,718 wounded; and 57 other allied killed and 239 wounded.

Other targets included the Thi Nguyen electric power plant 38 miles north of Hanoi and a radar site 38 miles north of the capital.

In South Vietnam, U.S. Air Force and carrier-based Navy jets flew 162 sorties to bomb North Vietnamese supply lines, troop concentrations and gun positions that menace the embattled Marine garrison at Khe Sanh.

Navy A4 Skyhawks and A1 Skyraiders from the carrier Coral Sea hit a truck park within six miles of the fortress. Air Force B52s dropped tons of bombs on areas where Communist troops are believed massed for a major attack on the Marine base.

The U.S. Command said 76 missions over North Vietnam Saturday carried out in low visibility and rain. Air Force F4 Phantoms attacked the Phuc Yen airfield 18 miles northwest of Hanoi for the second time in three days.

Russian-built IL28 jet bombers were spotted on that field Thursday and the base also is used as a MIG base. The U.S. Command said bad weather prevented a bomb damage assessment in the latest strike.

Sanitationmen return to jobs

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of sanitation men pitched into removing 100,000 tons of garbage from the city's streets Sunday, after a nine-day strike was ended on terms Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller forced on a protesting, angry Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Under Rockefeller's unprecedented formula, announced Saturday night, the state will take over the city Sanitation Department and pay the workers with city funds at a rate that Lindsay had said amounted to "black-mail."

Lindsay told a Sunday news conference that the Rockefeller plan was "unsound" and "corrupts the fundamental rights of the people of New York City and their elected representatives."

He said he had no time to lobby against the plan in a special session of the legislature which Rockefeller set for Monday.

But, Lindsay said, his statement should be "a very clear signal to members of the legislature about how I feel about this proposal."

Guard not called Rockefeller refused to call out the National Guard, as Lindsay, a fellow Republican, requested.

The governor said the guardsmen could not have done the job, and that their use could have led to "fighting in the streets." Organized labor had threatened a general strike if troops were used.

In addition, Rockefeller said the terms the union accepted were only 50 cents a week per man over the city's final offer. He said that amounted to $250,000 a year, while calling out the Guard for 60 days would cost $16 million—with maybe another $20 million for injury of guardsmen working at unfamiliar jobs with strange equipment.

Lindsay said he was "shocked" at Rockefeller's "capitulation" to the 10,000-member Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association, a Teamsters Union affiliate. In a radio-television appearance Lindsay used profanity in an aside, apparently unaware he was on the air. It was the most visible display of disagreement between the two men, both frequently mentioned for the GOP national ticket, despite their disagreements.

The 6,000 garbage men who reported to work Sunday were drawing double-time pay, part of their agreement with Rockefeller.

City Health Commissioner Edward O'Rourke said it would take at least five days before the health emergency would be ended.

Lindsay went on walking tours of two sections where the garbage was piled highest—the lower East Side and Harlem.

"As a beginning, it's not too bad," he said on return to City Hall, "but much has to be done yet."

Immediately after Rockefeller announced the settlement in a Saturday night television appearance, about 2,000 garbage men went to work and picked up 1,400 truckloads of refuse during the night.

Rockefeller's formula will require approval by the state legislature, which he said he would summon into special session Monday. The lawmakers are in the midst of their regular session, but the governor's call will mean they will have to drop other business to take care of the garbage dispute.

Cong may agitate among war's refugees

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas are infiltrating refugee camps choked by the half-million South Vietnamese civilians who fled their homes in the two weeks of fighting in the country's major cities, informants reported Sunday.

The sources said there were Communist agitators among the more than 200,000 refugees that have moved into shelters in the Saigon area.

They suggested the Viet Cong may be making a major attempt to turn the refugee masses against the Saigon government by alleging that the government has not protected them and is doing nothing for them.

"We're vulnerable here if the Viet Cong are in the camps," said one official acquainted with the refugee problem.

Government officials announced there were 157,000 civilians in 73 refugee shelters in Saigon and an additional 89,000 in shelters in the surrounding suburbs. By U.S. count, there are 217,000 refugees in the Saigon district.

U.S. officials said 510,000 refugees were left throughout the country by the Viet Cong attacks that opened Jan. 30.

Allied agencies rushed medical teams to the embattled city of Hue 400 miles northeast of Saigon where 13 days of street fighting has made refugees of more than three-fourths of the city's 40,000 population.

There has been no water or electric service since the fighting began and public health officials feared an outbreak of disease. A U.S. Navy medical team was dispatched with four tons of medical supplies, a U.S. mission spokesman said.

The government health ministry has sent two teams to Hue to begin inoculating against cholera and typhoid. Eighteen tons of food were airlifted to northern provinces Sunday and another 15 tons are to be sent Monday, with most of the food earmarked for Hue.

By U.S. count, there are 66,000 refugees in the 1st Corps northern provinces, 90,000 in the 2nd Corps central provinces, 26,000 in the 3rd Corps provinces plus the 217,000 in the Saigon district, and 111,000 in the 4th Corps southern provinces of the Mekong Delta.

At the start of 1967 there were 810,000 civilians in temporary refugee camps throughout South

Vietnam and the total was reduced by only three per cent during the year.

The reduction was accomplished with a budget for refugees from all sources of about $60 million. The South Vietnamese government has so far allotted only $5 million for its entire recovery program from the Viet Cong attacks.

Many of the 500,000 new refugees are not really homeless. Quite a few—maybe half—are in the camps because there is fighting in their neighborhoods and the camps offer relative security. They presumably will return to their homes when the fighting stops, officials say.

At Cho-Ray Hospital in Saigon's Chinatown—an area where fighting has been heavy—an estimated 8,000 neighborhood refugees have camped in the hospital grounds and buildings.

American doctors who had worked in the building before the fighting began in the area were told by Vietnamese hospital administrators to leave. The doctors were told they would draw Viet Cong fire.

Three American newsmen went to the hospital Sunday with two American doctors and were asked to leave by nurses who said their presence was making the refugees nervous since they thought the Viet Cong would fire at the Americans.

A refugee village has grown up in the walled hospital complex, complete with makeshift tents and soup salesmen. Some of the refugees are living in half-constructed buildings and a few have taken up residence in trucks parked in the compound.

The refugees apparently have enough to eat and small charcoal cooking fires are everywhere.

The hospital continues to take care of patients, but the high number of refugees makes the task of the doctors and nurses difficult.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker Sunday presented South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu with a $25,000 check for civilian war victims. Bunker said the money was another symbol of U.S. support "for the courageous efforts of the Vietnamese people and government to repel aggression and to care for the victims of the recent Viet Cong attacks."

The donation from the embassy's special fund, "also gives me an occasion to reaffirm my own government's commitment to the people and government of the republic of Vietnam," Bunker said.

Belgium love affair financed by American taxes, Scott says

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — "Love in Belgium cost the American taxpayer a quarter of a million dollars," Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., asserted Sunday.

He referred to disclosure of "an apparent love affair between a secretary in a Belgian firm and a U.S. foreign-AID official."

The Agency for International Development, which administers the overseas program, is trying to recover $250,000 in what it calls over-payments to the company for repairs to surplus equipment.

Four officials of the agency reportedly have resigned in the investigation. AID has turned the matter over to the Justice Department.

Scott commented in remarks prepared for delivery to a foreign-policy symposium at Pennsylvania State University. Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, also was listed as a speaker.

Clark urged that Congress and the nation "free its foreign-policy thinking from the cold war stereotypes of the 1940s and 1950s."

"The world has changed a good deal since the end of World War II, but unfortunately too many Americans and too many members of Congress do not appreciate it."

He said "the trouble with the cold war mentality is that it considers conflict and not cooperation to be the natural order of things."

Scott expressed support for U.S. foreign aid but added there was no excuse for what he called blundering disclosed through congressional efforts.

In addition to the surplus-property revelations, Scott recalled testimony at a recent Senate hearing that AID paid $24,000 under a program to supply pharmaceuticals

U Thant, Kosygin hold talks

MOSCOW (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant arrived from India Sunday and informants said he began discussions with Premier Alexei N. Kosygin on prospects for peace in Vietnam.

The main discussion on the war apparently took place at a dinner given Sunday night by Kosygin. Tass said a "friendly conversation took place" but gave no details. However, informants said the war was the main topic.

With visits to New Delhi, Moscow and London, Thant is reported trying to ensure that the increased fighting in South Vietnam does not spoil whatever small chances there are of peace talks.

NECK AND SHOULDER PAINS

By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder

Many of us at one time or the other suffer with pains in the neck and shoulders. Those of us who have, know the resultant tiredness, irritability and nervous strain that are present. These pains may result from poor posture, whiplash of the neck, drafts, such as we find in our modern air-conditioned offices, emotional tension, etc.

In nearly every case of neck and shoulder pains there is a history of adverse environment of some type. Headaches and sinus problems are often associated with this condition.

Chiropractors have been successful for years in correcting cases of neck and shoulder pains and many times in instances where other methods of relief were sought and no help found.

Bangor youths in festival

BANGOR — Two Bangor Area High School students have been selected to participate in the Pennsylvania Music Educators Association District Band Festival, the school's Music Department announced.

The students are Gary Ruggiero and Nicholas Sabatine III.

Both students will be among 170 instrumentalists who will attend the festival at Schuylkill Valley High School, Leesport.

The three-day festival begins Thursday and ends Saturday. The festival will include two concerts for the public on Friday and Saturday. Both concerts are at 8 p.m.

Ruggiero, a senior, and Sabatine, a junior, are members of the school band, dance band and chorus. Both have participated in numerous other school activities.

The PMEA District and Regional Festivals provide an opportunity for qualified school musicians to obtain musical experience and to inspire them to their musical abilities.

400 see Slate Belt concert

BANGOR—Nearly 400 persons attended the second in a series of three concerts Saturday, sponsored by the Slate Belt Concert Association in the Bangor Area High School.

"Everything was wonderful," said William Brown, president of the association. "The concert was well received by everyone who attended."

Nearly 300 persons had attended the association's first concert last November.

Saturday night's concert featured three Westminister College Choir students, one of whom is a Pen Argyl resident.

Kaye Louise Strunk, 20, of 111 Arch St., Pen Argyl, was organist while Monika Lidia Steinhilber, 20, of Canton, Ohio, and Mary Beth Schulte, 20, of Cobleskill, N.Y., were soloists.

Miss Strunk, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Strunk, Pen Argyl, played five organ solos from Bach, Brahms, Haydn, Elmore and Vierne.

Miss Steinhilber sang solos from Mozart and Shuman selections in addition to spirituals. She sang an encore from the musical, "The Sound of Music."

Miss Schulte sang solo selections from Britten and Purcell. Both sang duets from Puccini's opera, "Madame Butterfly" and "Sound of Music."

The Concert Association presented a piano bench to the Bangor High School in honor of Miss Wilaheman Flint, a pianist who presented the first concert last year. Principal Dr. Trevor Williams accepted the bench.

The final concert will be March 31.

The musical is about a Scottish town that has gone to sleep and awakes for a day, once every 100 years.

The main cast consists of Doug Miller and Roger Geer, two Americans who find the village; Jackie Rine as the flirtatious Meg Brockie, Jean Gibbons and Bev Storer as the McClaran sisters, Jean and Fiona.

SFC Richard Matulis and SFC Kenneth Schiwitz received the honor from the Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va., after they helped instruct a class of 300 officers and enlisted men in depot storage procedures.

On completion of the 30-day course, the soldier students boarded planes for Vietnam, where they will conduct a thorough count of equipment and supplies at all U. S. bases. The planned operation has been described as the largest inventory ever undertaken by the Army.

Matulis is an Army veteran of 13 years service, four of which have been spent at the Tobyhanna depot. Schiwitz, who has eight years military service, has been stationed at the local installation two years. Both are assigned to the depot's Plans and Training Office.

Their honorary faculty membership at Fort Lee was signed by Maj. Gen. Victor J. MacLaughlin, the school's commandant.

past year indicate total sales of $12,896,000, as compared with the previous year's $70,636,000.

For its size, it supports and maintains more stores than do many communities across the country.

According to Department of Commerce data, there are some 314 retail establishments in the county in which one or more people are employed.

In addition, based upon other figures, there are an estimated 200 owner-operated stores with no employees.

The total is 514, equivalent to one store for every 84 local residents.

Above average
The proportion is high. In some parts of the country, there is only one store for about 265 people.

The average in the United States is one for every 114 people. In the Middle Atlantic States, it is one for 113.

Nationally, there are fewer retail outlets today than there were 10 years ago. At that time, the total throughout the country was 1,897,000. Now it is 1,737,000.

The trend in recent years has been toward chain stores and large shopping centers. It has resulted in the consolidation or elimination of many small units.

The net effect is that there are fewer places than formerly for a family to do its shopping. But the majority of them are bigger, better stocked and more diversified than those of a decade ago.

Individual initiative
Despite the trend toward bigness, however, individual enterprise has not been completely stifled. Each year in the United States there are thousands of persons who strike out on their own, putting their savings and their efforts into new retail ventures.

Unfortunately, some of them are inadequately prepared and under-financed and they fail to make the grade.

Among the Monroe County stores that have employees, the Commerce Department lists 36 food shops, 73 eating and drinking establishments and 62 automotive dealers and service stations. There is no breakdown for stores with no employees.

The volume of business done by local stores has been on the increase, the reports show, notwithstanding changes in number of outlets.

Preliminary estimates for the past year indicate total sales of $72,896,000, as compared with the previous year's $70,636,000.

Two youths from Bethlehem and Allentown were the principal selections for the military academy.

He is Sayre Borough solicitor, solicitor for the Sayre Area school board, the Northern Bradford County School Authority and the Ulster Area School Authority. He is also solicitor and treasurer of the Star Building and Loan Association in Sayre.

Motorola Quasar is different. Most of the important components, for instance, are in a drawer that slides out.

And the works themselves are different, too. They are modules that plug in and plug out. Each module is a mini-circuit with its own job to do. There is a picture module, a color module, a sound module, and so on.

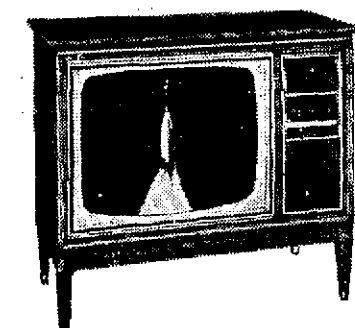

You can look around on those modules for tubes, but in the Quasar chassis, the only thing that looks like a tube is the rectifier. For the rest of it, transistors and other solid state devices have replaced tubes.

Lincoln was not popular president

Those with the historical affrontry to compare Abraham Lincoln with Lyndon Johnson today are apt to get laughed out of the debate.

After all, one is labeled a statesman by history, the other is labeled politician first even by his greatest friends.

But we wonder if 103 years ago someone had compared Lincoln with George Washington as a potentially great President, what the public reaction would have been?

People were so angry with Lincoln in his last days that some considered John Booth a hero and others in high position dragged their feet in seeking to solve the assassination plot.

A point to be made is that great Presidents don't seem to be born. More often they are made by the times and the agonizing decisions they must make. Then their "greatness" is often delayed until their own generation is replaced.

Lincoln's decision to do something about slavery brought on the Civil War, our darkest hour. It's possible Johnson's decisions not to ignore nor to force a military conquest in Vietnam will have an equally lasting effect on the U. S. Or it could be his decision to keep the anti-poverty struggle in motion while supporting the Vietnam effort will be cheered in history, especially his resistance to the many minorities that press for as many varieties of action.

Lincoln was eloquent, for what that is worth, while Johnson is no more than a homey speaker.

Lincoln was agonizingly patient, however, and though we are led to believe that Johnson is impatient, he has shown tremendous restraint.

The differences may not be as great as their image in modern society makes them for it is surely true that Lincoln is accepted as one of our greatest Presidents while the Johnson of 1968 is the most unpopular man in the White House since the Herbert Hoover of 1932... or maybe Lincoln in 1865.

It's wonderful world to anti-gloom writer

A few days ago it was noted here that The Record is receiving an uncommon number of mimeograph-type letters from all over the nation espousing the Far Right or Far Left causes.

They aren't for us, we said, because The Record Letters column is for use by its readers or, at least, by local people. Further, it was noted that very few take the time and spend the stamps to write if they are even reasonably satisfied with the status quo.

So here's an exception: A non-reader from Idaho who is more than reasonably satisfied. He writes:

"I get nothing but cheery chuckles from my gloomy friends who apparently want to stop the world and get off.

"I kind of like this world. I think it's great. Entertainment is at our fingertips; kids grow more loving, not more demanding each year. There's hope for the once hopelessly sick and vaccines against emergencies. We can carry insurance against 99 per cent of the calamities we may face. We have a fluid society that accounts for friends in every state.

"You think it's tough? Who said life is easy? What about the people living 50 years ago? Where are the families in the U.S. found frozen to death or starving in tumbling apartments or shacks? Where are the child laborers, the deaths at birth, the epidemics, the hopeless eyes of the 80-hour a week laborer who never saw a movie, let alone a show or a concert and never went fishing, or to the school basketball game or went boating or skiing?

"I like the world—even with the threats of war and overpopulation; and I'm gonna enjoy it.

"Prophets of doom! I'm gonna enjoy today, tomorrow and next week and every other week the Good Lord gives me to enjoy!"

Light side With Gene Brown

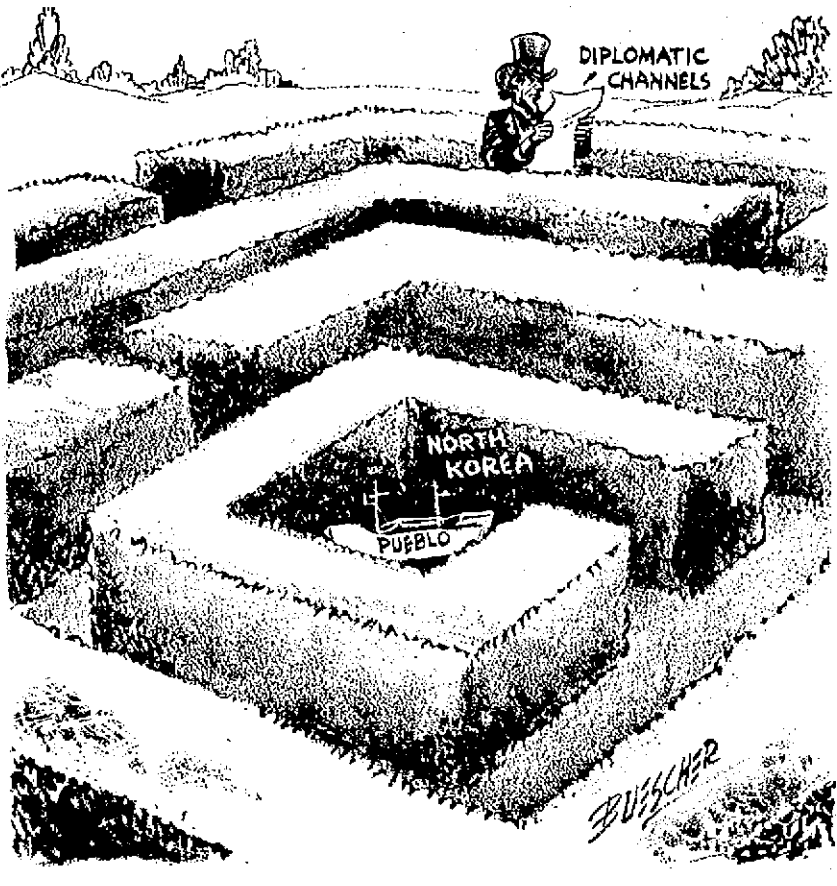

What It Wasn't: Somebody told us the story recently of what happened in one of the city's hotels to a friend of his. The man was enjoying himself not too wisely but well at a business cocktail party, and apparently was thoroughly sozzled when he had to go down the hall.

But on the way back to the party he opened the wrong door and found himself looking in on a quite dignified meeting of quite dignified-looking ladies of mature years.

"Where the heck am I?" the man asked.

There was loud silence and stares from dozens of pairs of eyes for several seconds. Then one elderly lady spoke up crisply, "Well, it ain't Marlboro country."

Harris Public Survey Negotiate, don't fight

BY LOUIS HARRIS The American people, by more than 2 to 1, oppose going to war against North Korea over the capture of the Pueblo, according to interviewing conducted last week. By 58 to 17, a majority of the public believes the Pueblo affair will be settled peacefully and will no end in a war.

Of those polled, 76 of the people agree that the proper course for Washington in trying to obtain release of the Pueblo and its crew is to negotiate a prisoner exchange with the North Koreans.

All alternative approaches tested were rejected by the public. By 57 to 25, people were opposed to U.S. bombing of a North Korean city. By 75 to 11, the public turned down the notion that this country should retaliate by capturing a Russian spy ship. However, by 89 to 5, people rejected the proposition that "The U.S. do nothing and forget it."

The special cross section of the public also gave a lopsided 73 to 13 approval of the United States continuing to operate so-called "spy ships" in the proximity of Communist waters.

The basic reaction of Americans to the Pueblo incident, therefore, must be classified as moderate. The people want to see the crew returned, but are willing to have their government take the time to work out an exchange through negotiations rather than resorting to force which might result in war.

However, by 45 to 38, Americans believe this country is capable of engaging the North Vietnamese and North Koreans simultaneously if it becomes necessary.

On the options the United States should exercise in the Pueblo affair, the public was asked:

"If the North Koreans refuse to return the captured crew of the Pueblo, do you agree or disagree that:"

Agree Disagree Not Sure We should try harder to negotiate an exchange of prisoners... 76 10 14 We should bomb a North Korean city... 25 57 18 We should go to war with North Korea... 22 57 21 We should retaliate by capturing a Russian spy ship... 11 75 14 We should do nothing and forget it... 5 89 6

The capture of the Pueblo and the resulting tensions appear to have done little to shake American confidence in the intelligence usefulness of these "spy ships." People were asked:

"Do you generally approve or disapprove of the United States operating spy ships which can pick up messages from inside Communist areas?"

Approve of spy ships... 73 Disapprove... 13 Not sure... 14

Particularly significant is the finding of the survey that American military involvement with North Korea would not necessarily constitute an overextension of U.S. commitments. The interviewing took place on the heels of the widespread Communist attacks on 38 South Vietnamese cities.

The cross section was asked:

"If we get involved in military operations in Korea again, along with fighting in Vietnam, do you think such involvement in Korea would overextend our military strength, or do you think we could be involved militarily in both places at once?"

Could be overextended... 35 Would be involved in both... 45 Not sure... 19

It is clear that the American people, although sorely strained over the prolonged struggle in Vietnam, are prepared to back military action in Korea, but do not feel the Pueblo incident justifies another war.

First of a series Dedicated delegates work to give us constitution

(Editor's Note — Jim Riley, managing editor of The Pocono Record, spent two days last week at the Constitutional Convention and convention seminar in Harrisburg. In a series of articles he will explain several possible constitutional changes, the reasons behind them and a general overall picture of the convention.)

BY JIM RILEY Record Managing Editor HARRISBURG — History is being made in Pennsylvania's State Capital, where 153 delegates to the Constitutional Convention are racing against time to amend our present constitution by Thursday, Feb. 29, a deadline mandated by law.

Oddly enough the Constitutional Convention is being guided by two other words that begin with the letter "C", namely confusion and coniving.

Yet, the entire package must be ready for the people to either approve or disapprove at the polls in the primary election on Tuesday, April 23.

Delegates have been burning the midnight oil since December 1, when the convention first convened. Committees and individuals have been putting in 16 and 18-hour days for the most part and the results are now being put to their most severe test on the convention floor, located in Pennsylvania's House of Representatives.

The convention delegates number 88 Republicans and 75 Democrats. Each committee has an equal number of rival party members in its membership and each of the co-chairmen is of a rival party.

Dedicated delegates Delegates come from the four corners of the state and have brought thousands of problems and even more ideas to Harrisburg. However, each, for the most part, has even more importantly brought a burning desire, seldom if ever witnessed in the halls of this ancient capital building.

Pennsylvania last revised its constitution in 1873, and during the 96 years that followed laws have become outmoded, twisted and even unjustified.

It is now the job of the current Constitutional Convention to bring our present constitution up to date and rid it of all the evils and unproductive laws it contains.

But, the job isn't easy. After two months of effort, during which tempers became short and voices loud, four committees have completed what they hope will be accepted as proposals for the state's new constitution.

The proposals come under four general headings: local government, judiciary, taxation and financing and legislative apportionment.

During the next several days we will try to explain the problems confronted by each committee and the thinking behind many of the proposals. We hope to present a few bits of new information without influencing your thoughts on the situation.

Not all of the proposals will survive the debate on the floor of the convention, as has the retention of the 203-member House of Representatives during the past week.

Can't be perfect for all There are proposals you won't like and I don't like all the proposals. However, they are convinced that they have obtained the best package possible at this date. They are even more convinced that each of the changes, if they survive attacks on the floor, are improvements upon our present constitution.

We call on each of you to read and think about the Constitutional Convention, since the time between the end of the convention and the primary election is short and explanations of the complex situation will never be adequate.

Explanation on the ballot April 23 must be incomplete, as each of the formal questions can contain only 75 words, according to law. The number of questions on the ballot and their situation is still in doubt.

The Allen-Scott Report Nuclear weapons ready for use
Robert S. Allen Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Tactical nuclear weapons are immediately at hand if necessary to avert a disastrous defeat at massively-menaced Khesanh. Such use of these holocaust arms is unanimously favored by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

They do not believe this dire contingency will arise.

On the basis of comprehensive estimates from General Westmoreland, fully supported by his deputy, General Creighton Abrams, an outstanding tank commander under the famed General Patton, the Joint Chiefs are convinced Khesanh can be held despite the considerable numerical superiority of the powerfully entrenched North Vietnam regulars.

This judgment has been expressed in a formal statement to President Johnson.

However, should a desperate crisis develop at Khesanh and the outcome of this fateful battle be at stake, the Joint Chiefs are emphatically of the view there should be no hesitancy in resorting to tactical nuclear weapons.

If and when such a perilous situation does arise, the momentous decision will be solely up to the President.

Extended discussions on such an eventuality and its far-flung military, domestic, international and other ramifications have taken place between the President, the Joint Chiefs and other key Pentagon and State Department officials.

The President has given no indication of his thinking. He has asked many questions and listened intently, but has carefully kept his own counsel.

The Joint Chiefs, when asked their opinion, have explicitly and unequivocally advocated recourse to nuclear weapons at Khesanh if that becomes imperative. Without exception, the military leaders have responded to this question firmly and positively.

The U. S. has a variety of ground and airborne tactical nuclear weapons. Chiefly in the kiloton (thousands of tons of TNT) range, they are relatively "clean" with minor fallout.

One point stressed in the White House deliberations is that B-52 bombings in recent weeks have stripped the Khesanh area, a small highland valley, of its civilian population. It is argued this eliminates any inhibitions against

Lester Coleman, M.D. Effects of jet travel

I do a considerable amount of air travel by jet from east to west and west to east. I find that my entire body seems to be knocked out of gear, and frequently after a flight I actually do not function well or think clearly. What causes this and is there any way to avoid it?

Dr. N. D. Iowa Dear Mr. D.: It is an accepted fact that the human body functions in a rhythmic way. There are rhythms for sleep. There are rhythms for hunger and there are many rhythms and cycles in many organs of the body that depend on the makeup and personality of the individual. These rhythmic cycles are called circadian.

I believe the word originates from circa, meaning around, and diem, meaning day.

Your problem occurs so frequently that administrators in the Armed Forces and the State Department are advised to expect fatigue and even psychological maladjustment after a rapid jet flight. In order to function at a maximum some suggestions are helpful. I have found a technique that seems to work well for me.

If I leave New York City for Europe, I try to fly during the day. When I arrive in England the time is about five hours earlier than it is in New York.

It is a temptation, therefore, to socialize immediately with friends who have had the advantage of five hours more rest than I have had. I avoid this by not changing my watch time until after my first night's sleep. I find that if I go to sleep in England according to my own watch time rather than to theirs I can wake up moderately refreshed.

My advice, therefore: Sleep and work on your body's time and not on the clock time at the place of arrival.

We live in a part of the country where the sting-ray fish is seen occasionally in the water. I have been bitten twice and have been left with a hole which does not seem to heal.

Is there any way to treat such a bite immediately to avoid long periods of delayed healing?

Mr. G. A. A. N., Florida Dear Mr. N.: For those who do not live in your area let me point out that the sting-ray is one of a large group of fish that have sharp barbs and inflict severe wounds on those whom they "bite."

There are many thousands of people who are stung each year by sting-rays. The injury, inflicted by the sharp, needle-like barbs, is particularly painful and is frequently complicated if one of the spines is broken off and is left beneath the skin surface. This apparently happened to you and has left a "hole," technically known as an "ulcer."

It is known that the venom of the sting-ray can be rapidly removed from the body with heat.

Erma Bombeck

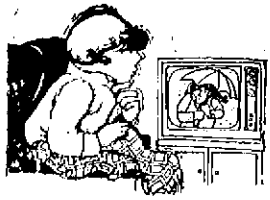

TV germs spread

Well, it finally happened. I know it would. I caught a cold from those idiots on the television commercials.

Around 6 o'clock last week when I was watching the news, this woman grabbed her head, grimaced and promptly indicated she was out of focus. I felt a little queasy, too, but I moved my chair back from the TV set and went on with my viewing.

An hour or so later, a Japanese man started to sneeze, karate - chopping every piece of furniture in sight. Both of us grabbed a lozenge and when everything was under control, I politely bowed to him from the waist and changed the channel.

Here, I found a girl shivering in the rain waiting for a bus. I knew then we were in for it. Later, she couldn't get the window of the bus closed, so she resolutely turned up her coat collar, slouched in her seat and waited for pulmonary complications to set in. I couldn't stand it. I got the Afghan and threw it on over my bathrobe.

During the next commercial, a rotten kid coughed without covering his mouth and whined, "Mommy, I feel stuffy."

"You little creep," I shouted at the screen, "with you around we can look forward to an epidemic!" His Mommy rubbed something on his chest and he promptly went to sleep. I sat there unable to breathe.

The next break showed a poor devil who should have been under an oxygen tent. His eyes were watering, his nose clogged, his face drawn. Then, before my very eyes his sinuses began to fill up. If I live to be a hundred I won't forget it. Dejectedly, he took a nasal-graph test and promptly flunked it. A strange man then squished some nasal spray up his nose and, Holy Orphan Amie, he passed it.

Help had come too late for me, however. My body began to ache and I tried desperately to remember which neighbor had borrowed our heating pad. I closed my eyes and began to drowse.

When I awoke, mercifully there were no sick people on the screen... only a small body with numbers and squares. The announcer was saying No. 2 square was a headache; No. 1, fever; No. 6, an upset stomach; No. 4, a runny nose; No. 3, a sore throat; No. 7, aching muscles, and No. 5, a tight chest. With a pencil, I tallied my score. I had all seven of them. Weakly, I flipped the button on the TV set. Here a woman in her rose garden was telling her best friend about her irregularities.

"What are you watching?" asked my husband. "Who cares," I coughed. "At least, it isn't contagious."

MORA Club holds session

STROUDSBURG — "Youth Vagary and My Family Annals" was the subject of V. R. Fitzgerald's talk at the MORA meeting this week.

The session was the largest in attendance this winter. The joint luncheon and social featured Lincoln and St. Patrick's Day place cards and insignias.

Rev. L. E. Martin offered

Interstate highways set safety mark

HARRISBURG — The state highway department has recently completed a survey comparing traffic accidents on 179 miles of Interstate highway and older paralleling routes during 1966.

Interstate Rt. 80 and 81E pass through parts of Monroe County.

The survey shows that the Interstate highways are three times safer than the paralleling routes.

More than three times as many accidents were recorded on routes with lower posted speed limits but with unlimited turning movements and exits.

Routes were compared with the high speed, four-lane expressways where left turns are prohibited and exits and entrances are limited to carefully planned interchanges.

The sections studied were Interstate Rt. 81, 51.7 miles, from Carlisle south to the Maryland line vs. U. S. Rt. 11, 45.3 miles, and parallels Rt. 81; Interstate Rt. 81, 53.9 miles, from Scranton to the New York State line vs. U. S. Rt. 11, 57.3 miles, which also parallels Rt. 81.

Dates set for annual hotel show

STROUDSBURG — The Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau is planning its most ambitious Hotel and Restaurant Show in history, at Tamiment-in-the-Poconos, May 7 and 8.

Clarence Rutt, the generalissimo of the two-day affair, says the 20th annual show "will be the best ever."

The show will cover the entire ballroom, tavern, fountain room and foyer of Tamiment's modern layout.

Early registration indicates that more than 100 exhibitors will show their wares to resort owners, hotel managers, cottage colony and motel operators, restaurateurs, camp directors, institutional managers, tavern owners and invited guests.

It is expected that more than 5,000 persons will take in the show, which will get under way May 7 at 12:30 p.m., at a luncheon sponsored by the PMVB.

Ribbon cutting ceremonies will be held on May 7 at 2 p.m. and a special floor show has been scheduled for 10:30 p.m. the night of May 7.

Wednesday, May 8, will feature live exhibitions on the latest in new products, cooking ideas and techniques.

Bids delayed for new ESSC girls dorm

EAST STROUDSBURG — Bids for a proposed women's dormitory at East Stroudsburg State College were postponed by the General State Authority in Harrisburg Thursday as the legislature has not yet appropriated funds for the purchase of the land.

The $1.35 million building was scheduled for completion by Aug. 15, 1969 but the target date will probably be pushed back because of the delay in purchasing the land.

The proposed site near Normal and Smith Sts. in East Stroudsburg has already been condemned but cannot be purchased until funds are available. When completed, the new facility will house 300 students, college officials announced.

STROUDSBURG — Deeds filed in the office of Register and Recorder Friday include:

Legal action for payment

STROUDSBURG — The Interstate Mushroom Co., Avondale, Pa., has filed suit in Monroe County Court seeking $1,819 in alleged unpaid bills from a Mount Pocono man.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

When the few scattered snowflakes began to fall on Friday night, there was none of that sinking sensation that a Friday snowstorm usually brings: for once I wasn't going anywhere and no one was coming, so I could relax.

Which is a pretty selfish attitude when there must have been lots of people who were going to have to worry about one or the other. But maybe they've already got their car dented this winter.

It's a sobering thought to see all the otherwise shiny cars that are all dented up, fore or aft or most often right spung in the middle. It looks to me as if they'd all taken a pretty philosophical attitude: as long as somebody had slid into them or they had slid into a tree and the damage was done, they might just as well wait until spring before getting scars removed.

Speaking of scars, the winter has certainly left its mark not only on littered lawns and broken branches and peck-marked roads but on people as well. We look so pale and wan as if we were just getting over an illness or had spent the winter in a dark cave.

Which we practically have, I guess, except for the skiers. The women can pretty well cover up the ravages of cold and lack of sunlight with make-up but the men look sort of pinched and blue-lipped.

Although I don't know why, having adopted long hair, masculine perfume, and ruffled shirts they don't go one step further and rouge and lipstick. They wouldn't be any healthier but they'd look it.

Valentine Day breakfast planned by TLC Council

Henryville — Final plans for the annual Valentine breakfast of the TLC Council of Republican Women were made at the board meeting held at the home of Mary Ralston in Stroudsburg.

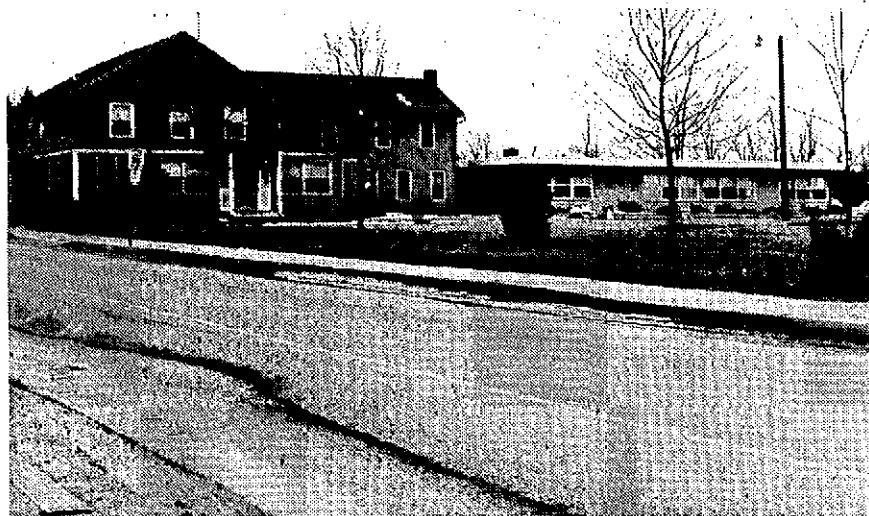

The breakfast will be held on Valentine's Day, Feb. 14, at 10 a.m. at the Norway House, Route 191 in Paradise Valley. Deadline for reservations is Monday, Feb. 12, through the chairman, Mrs. Everett Ross. The breakfast marks a change in meeting days.

Council members signed a get-well card to Sally Ferrebee, honorary member and a sympathy card to charter member, Mrs. John Bowman. Secretary Mary Ralston read a letter from Walter S. Wyckoff about the Spring Fashion Show to be held April 23. The council voted unanimously to join in the sale of tickets.

The president, Mrs. Walter N. Davis, announced that she had reserved a table for ten to accommodate TLC members attending the Lincoln Day Dinner on Monday night at the Inn at Buck Hill Falls.

With the treasurer, Mrs. Hugo Selger, in Florida until April; and legislative chairman, Mrs. Everett Ross, and secretary, Mary Ralston, both planning trips, it was voted to cancel the March meeting with the next meeting after the Valentine breakfast to be held Wednesday, April 3, at the home of Mrs. Helen Seemiller.

Laurel Manor is a home for the elderly who can no longer live alone. It is this year's civic improvement project for the woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs.

Laurel Manor focus of aid by local Woman's Club

Stroudsburg — Laurel Manor is the civic improvement project of the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs this year, through its chairman, Mrs. Harry Sutton and Mrs. Harold Meixell.

They have contributed $300 to equip the nurse's station at Laurel Manor, which, purchased with a discount added up to a small refrigerator for medicine with a heating unit on top, a stethoscope, blood pressure equipment, and an electropot among other things.

The club's interest in the Manor has been sparked through the years by the dedication of one of its own members to realize the goal: of a place where senior citizens who were financially independent but no longer cared to live alone or were unable to do so could have a home.

Mrs. Carroll All, a member of both the Business and Professional Woman's Club and the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs, was a prime mover in establishing Laurel Manor. As an employee of the local office of the Department of Public Assistance of the State of Pennsylvania, she was in daily contact with the plight of the elderly who could no longer manage alone but had nowhere to go.

She enlisted the Business and Professional Woman's Club in the project about 1947. Through many money-raising projects and personal donations, they finally had accumulated $3,000, and begun searching for sites.

They wanted it to be in town, within walking distance of the business section so that residents of the home would not be shut off from friends and former interests.

A two-family house which had been converted into a small hotel in the western part of town was finally selected. Purchased for $50,000, rooms were rented there until they could raise the money to make the payments plus another $15,000 necessary to convert it into a home for senior citizens.

There were many stipulations set by the borough and the state before it could be qualified. The Monroe County Home Assn. was formed in 1955 to realize these goals. It was composed of prominent business men and citizens, including the then president of the Woman's Club, Mrs. Claude Leister.

From the original gift of $3,000 from the Business and Professional Woman's Clubs, private individuals, clubs, businesses and some industries contributed to the project.

In February, 1959, the home became a reality and the name Laurel Manor was adopted. Clubs and individuals were asked to help with the furnishings. In 1961, the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs had a linen shower which included sheets, pillowcases and linens valued at $300.

The Monroe County Home Assn., mindful of the untiring effort, interest and aid which Mrs. Carroll All displayed in helping to establish Laurel Manor, recently honored her by presenting a scroll and dedicatory poem.

In addition their gift of money this year, the Woman's Club has also contributed service. One member has been making regular weekly visits, mending for the guests and assisting wherever needed. Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. Meixell are requesting other volunteers, and have already scheduled a member to show slides and give an illustrated talk.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Andrew Schaffer,

Mrs. Margaret Loney, R.N., charge nurse at Laurel Manor and Mrs. Harry Sutton, chairman of the Woman's Club Civic Improvement Project together admire a plaque dedicated to Mrs. Carroll All, a member of the Woman's Club and Business and Professional Woman's Club, who was instrumental in getting the Home organized.

PROMINENT DESIGNER PATTERN

PRINTED PATTERN M362 SIZES 8-16

Laurence Gross

IT'S CUT TO CLING A LITTLE CLOSER THAN BEFORE — that's the major fashion news Printed Pattern M362 announces for Spring '68. The only thing standoffish about this young, lively design by Laurence Gross is the crisp, little neckband. Beneath it, the line plummets smooth, sleek, straight down one side to flaps that point up the importance of the long-waisted look rather than indicate pocket position. The buttons are decorative — it's quicker to step in and zip up the back. Easier sewing, too. Choose silvery crepe, linen, shantung, knits.

Printed Pattern M362 is available in NEW Misses' Sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16. Size 12 (bust 34) requires 2 1/2 yards 35-inch.

Send ONE DOLLAR for Printed Pattern M362 to Pocono Record, Pattern Department, P. O. Box 59, Old Chelsea Station, New York, N. Y. 10011. (Add 15 cents for each pattern for first class mailing and special handling.) Please print plainly YOUR NAME, ADDRESS with ZIP, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

JACK O'BRIAN'S

Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Mrs. Ira Katzenberg, Bdw. First Nighter for 50 years, watched "The Price" with glasses — from the first — row center!

"The Price" is another Arthur Miller pseudo-intellectuality straining feebly through its pretentiously neo-brainy second half to explain away people neglecting everyone else — fathers, brothers, hate their mothers, etc., a common Miller hang-up in his last few flailing plays.

But its first — third is most unusual for Miller — warmly amusing, with one of the most marvelously endearing characterizations of any Bdw.

theatre season: the role played by Harold Gary, into which he stepped shortly before the Bdw. premiere when David Burns was hospitalized.

It is rich, true, full of heart, cheerful cynicism and depth.

Had Miller explored this character for his central thesis instead of clumsily relegating him to an off-stage bedroom to rest up from a weak spell, which remained on stage thenceforth for the play's duration, he might have struck a deeper, more decent chord than his thrashing threnody of self-abnegation for past abandonment of responsibilities, his play's anticlimactic central theme.

"The Price" presumes to be a drama of commitment, which Edward Albee's "A Delicate Balance" last season explored with far more insight and clarity, and falls miserably on that level; in fact, it flails monotonously one Harold Gary in the role of an 89-year old used-furniture appraiser is discarded for the hardly unexpected Miller polemics; too bad; he had a splendid serio comic commentary being explored pleasurably until he switched gears.

Briefly, it's about a brace of brothers, one a cop who missed higher aims, the other a doctor gone on to success, riches and several breakdowns, who meet in the old attic room wherein they once studied and lived, the doctor to abandon his broken father, the younger to stand emotional guard and miss the splendid scientific career he wanted.

This bickering confrontation involved Pat Hingle as the cop, Arthur Kennedy as the doctor, Kate Reid as the cop's wife, ambitious for the cheap pleasures of being rich; last, ad first in excellence, Gary as the stranger who comes to appraise furniture and should have remained to appraise the whole mess.

Ed Fitzgerald, half of radio's original, and best, Mr. & Mrs. chatter team (Pegeen's the prettier younger half) celebrated his 75th birthday; Lord Edward, III so often he's considered a disaster area by his friends, is well again, the spunkiest, crustiest, eldest old grouch in showbiz.

WOR's brilliant press — aide John P. (Jack) Shanley (Bellerose Village, L.I.) moves onward and upward to press director for Bklyn's prestigious Pratt Institute; Jack's a former N.Y. If the Arabs keep it up, Israel will unleash a secret terrorist troupe which'll make the old Haganah seem like flower people... Great Yiddish Theatre composer (Bel Mr. Bist Du Schoon, etc.) Sholem Secunda's over his heart wallop and returns to the Concord in the Sour Cream Alps to conduct the Concord Choir for Passover; spunky old gent.

Our old friend and colleague Alra Haer must've been inspired by the big story she wrote for the new Weight Watchers magazine: Alra shelled 30 pounds herself. The price of theatre tickets skyrocketed so high, putting on a play is only slightly more risky than going to one... Population of hospital declines Record Harrisburg Bureau HARRISBURG — Perhaps surprisingly to many, the patient population of Allentown State Hospital, the state mental facility whose service area includes Monroe County, has shown a five-year decline.

This was indicated in a report by the Legislative Budget and Finance Committee (the Legislature's "watchdog" committee) following a study of the state's mental hospital system.

The report shows for example that from 1962 to 1966 the average number of patients at the Monroe County-served facility dropped from 1757 a year to 1594. This decline underscores what the State Department of Public Welfare refers to as current emphasis on greater care and treatment of patients rather than mere custodial care, thus permitting freer movement of patient populations from institutional facilities.

Through history The story on patient population has been like this: in 1962 it climbed to 1784 from the 1757 of the preceding year, then down to 1760 in 1964, down to 1665 in 1965 and then to the 1594 for 1966, the final complete year available for the committee survey.

Interestingly, while the patient population was declining, the average number of employees varied, moving from 699 in 1962 to 704 in 1963, 694 in 1964, 690 in 1965 and again 699 in 1966.

Cy Barrett Says

Inspiring the poor

DEAR CY: Who was the first man to fly? I have to write a theme on him for school. Your service might save me having to go to the library. P.S.: I want to fly someday.

TOMMY D.

DEAR TOMMY: Flight from this earth began when Etienne and Joseph Montgolfier of France saw a lady's slip flutter while it was drying near an open fireplace. They quickly grasped the concept of hot air rising for flight in the late eighteenth century. (The Wright brothers took off in 1903). The Montgolfiers' hot air balloon, fed with hot air from a dangerous fire, eventually went aloft with some chickens as passengers. King Louis XV became so awed by the new dangers created by man-made flight that he decreed only condemned criminals could fly. Gallant Jean-Francois Pilatre de Rozier, in 1783, persuaded the king to relent and went skyward in a huge balloon, fed hot air by a fire-stoking accomplice in the gondola. This time, no chickens.

Reports are the pair soared to 3,000 feet. According to Popular Rotocraft Flying magazine, "Although hundreds of balloon flights have been made since Pilatre de Rozier rode into history on the first manned flight, the first aeronaut was also the first to perish for his audacity." De Rozier, in attempting a crossing of the English Channel later with a hydrogen balloon, died when his airship caught fire. Sorry to tell you this, Tommy, but unless you get used to library research, you probably won't get off the ground professionally in the space age. Those chickens quit studying and they can't fly today. CY

DEAR CY: I am secretary to a complete egomaniac. Whenever there is a quiet moment, he takes the opportunity to talk about himself. For his birthday, I'd like to give him a present with a message. Any suggestions? MISS B.

DEAR MISS B.: You might try to find one of those new telephones which celebrities have been wanting for so long. Instead of ringing, it applauds. CY

To ask boards for day off

Teachers set for salary march

By PETE GRADY

STROUDSBURG — It appears that at least 113 Monroe County teachers, 25 per cent of the 452 teachers from the four area high schools, will take part in a mass demonstration March 4 in Harrisburg to protest legislative inaction on salaries and state subsidies.

In Harrisburg Saturday militant members of the Pennsylvania State Education Association voted resoundingly to call a one-day walk out March 4 in order to stage a demonstration at the Capitol on the day the General Assembly reconvenes.

The resolution sponsoring the walkout was adopted by the PSEA's House of Delegates during a stormy three-hour meeting. More than 1,000 delegates were in attendance.

PSEA local branches were ordered to negotiate with school boards for a day off without pay, with 25 per cent or more of the PSEA membership to gather for the protest march on the Capitol.

Those who do not attend were told to conduct "professional seminars, motorcades or meetings" in their home districts.

Monroe County's four area school boards will probably grant their local teacher association requests to attend the protest by either declaring March 4 a holiday or an in-service day.

Three out of the four boards, Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Pocono Mountain, have good rapport with their local teacher groups.

Understandably, they do not want to upset this relationship by refusing their teacher group's requests.

The Pleasant Valley Education Association and the Pleasant Valley school board are still involved in a suit presently pending in court. The PVEA felt it was necessary to start a court action against the school board to negotiate salary demands.

PV school board president John Rinker said Sunday night he personally would approve of the teacher's request to send a group to Harrisburg but he couldn't speak for the other board members.

He said the board would probably declare March 4 an official holiday and make up the day during the remaining calendar year.

Roger Arnold, president of the PVEA, was not available for comment Sunday night but has said on previous occasions that he would favor "anything short of a strike."

Tea Jarrett, president of the Pocono Mountain Education Association and Douglas Schoonover, president of the East Stroudsburg Area Teacher's Association, said Sunday night that they voted in favor of the walk out at the delegate's meeting Saturday.

Robert Wolbert, president in Stroudsburg Area Education Assn., said he abstained from the plurality vote due to the wishes of his local members.

"We were mandated by the local branch not to vote for anything else but censure of the administration on its lack of action on teachers' salaries and state subsidies," Wolbert said.

Penalties During Saturday's heated meeting, PSEA counsel Lewis Adler of Harrisburg advised the delegates that the teachers would be subject to penalties under the state's employees' anti-strike law if the school boards refused to give them the day off.

This could range from loss of tenure to dismissal, he explained later to newsmen.

The teachers are pressing for a legislative enactment of a bill to raise their minimum starting salaries from $4,500 to $5,000 by 1970, with higher brackets to be adjusted accordingly.

Gov. Shafer, who is committed to that goal, promised to report back to the legislature within 45 days on the amount of money available for the pay raise this year.

A verbal struggle between the more militant and moderate delegates was resolved finally when PSEA President John Standa of Johnstown supported the March 4 walk out.

"It provides us with a course of action," he said when asked for his personal views. "The future of this organization is at stake."

O. James Davis of Reading, chairman of the PSEA's legislative committee, which had recommended a moderate course of action, was never permitted to complete his report.

Jarrett described the delegates meeting as "floundering," beset with too many parliamentary rules, changes and modifications, until Standa gave his support.

"Once Standa threw in his support, things speeded up," Jarrett said.

Wednesday, Jarrett will ask permission to attend the mass demonstration at Harrisburg from the Pocono Mountain School board during its regular monthly meeting.

Next step If the school board denies the request, Jarrett will then reveal to the press the association's next move. If the school board grants the request, those teachers not attending the demonstration will hold seminars in the high school, Jarrett said.

James Price, president of the Pocono Mountain School Board, feels that the majority of the teachers in the PMEA are not behind the mass demonstration.

"But they still belong to the PSEA organization, and for them it's the old story of going along with the top brass," Price said.

Price adopted a "wait and see" attitude on the board's decision this Wednesday to grant or refuse the teacher group's request to send at least 25 per cent of their members to Harrisburg. "There's a lot at stake up here," he said referring to the complexities involved in the decision.

"We've got more than 2,300 pupils, and we've got good teacher relations and we intend to keep them that way."

Cohen runs for Congress under new party label

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg artist Peter Cohen has announced his candidacy for Representative in the 15th Congressional District under a new party label.

Cohen was endorsed as a candidate by the newly formed Common Sense Party.

The party was formed during a meeting in Bethlehem Friday night between 30 persons from Lehigh, Northampton and Monroe Counties.

The party will circulate nomination papers starting Wednesday. Officers of the new party are:

Mary Cohen, wife of the candidate; Agnes Coleman, Easton; Philip Jurus, Stroudsburg R.D. 4; Robert O. Richardson, Allentown.

The nomination papers, which placed Cohen on the ballot, can be signed by any registered voter, regardless of party enrollment.

The captains in charge of circulating the papers are: Dick Csand, Allentown; Rose Kurler, Bethlehem; Polly Cohen, Stroudsburg.

Artist Peter G. Cohen, the party's candidate, lives with his wife and two sons near Stroudsburg. An artist by profession, Cohen has taught art in the area and has judged several exhibitions.

A student of national and international affairs, Cohen has traveled extensively in the United States and abroad, living in England, Mexico and India.

During World War II, he served with the U.S. Army Signal Corps in the Philippines and Japan. In 1966, he served as campaign manager for Henry C. Messinger, candidate for Congress in the 15th District.

While the platform of the party is not yet established, Cohen has explained his desire to run in these words:

"I am deeply concerned about the future of our nation. We are bogged down in a huge land war in Asia. We have a growing loss of confidence in our government and in our ability to handle our problems."

In the world's richest nation, thousands of children are being crippled by malnutrition. Worst of all, leadership of the major parties has failed to develop plans that inspire the confidence of the people.

In this election year, it is essential that the voters get a clear, realistic, actual discussion of the issues. It is my hope to stimulate such a discussion in our area. As an independent candidate I will be free to do so without the limitation of party politics."

Archaeologists hold session on Indian lore around Gap

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Archaeology is the study of ancient people and nearly 100 professional and amateur archaeologists, meeting in the shadow of the historic Delaware Water Gap at Kittatinny Point Saturday, discussed the ancient civilizations which existed in the area.

The archaeologists, meeting in what was a workshop session, compared notes on various excavations pertaining to Indian civilizations in the Delaware Water Gap area.

The meeting was given added impetus for speedy excavations and studies since a large part of the area, where excavations were made and are being studied, will be inundated.

A total 11 archaeologists and historians discussed the ancient Indian civilizations and artifacts and other evidences of their existence found to date during the day-long session.

Archaeology, it seems, is much like building a house, only you do it without any blueprint of any kind. It is also much like building a home in the dark.

An example of this problem was pointed out by Theodore Brush, president of the Sussex County, N.J., Historical Society. The society is attempting to excavate a home. To do this, they first have to find the foundation. It isn't as easy as it sounds, however.

Clear debris The Society intended to use a backhoe to clear debris from the basement of the home. Edward Larabee, an archaeologist, pointed out, however, that a backhoe will rip the soil and in the process, may destroy the foundation the society is looking for.

He suggested that the Society determine which way the walls of the home fell and then begin the excavation accordingly.

Miss Patricia Marchiando, assistant curator of archeology at New Jersey State Museum, listed the civilizations which existed in the Water Gap area and what excavations had been made in Warren and Sussex County, N.J.

Other speakers at Saturday's session were:

Peter DeGelleke, superintendent of the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area (DWGNRA), which sponsored the workshop; Dr. John Corbett, Zorro Bradley, assistant chief archaeologist, National Park Service; Albert Dillahunty, DWGNRA historian; David Werner, Lenape Chapter, 12; Fred Kinsey, director of the North Museum; Elmer Erb, field exploration chairman for the Forks of the Delaware Chapter and Herbert Kraft, director of the New Jersey University Museum.

ESSC matmen edge Rams; cagers upset Millersville

Capture final 3 bouts

By TED WISMER
Record Sports Editor

ESSC's strength in the upper weights carried it to a 24-19 decision over previously unbeaten West Chester State Saturday before 2,500 partisan fans in the Kocher Field House.

For the second straight meet the Warriors (8-2) were in the position of needing a sweep in the last three bouts for victory. The week before, against Lock Haven, they won all three but failed to get the pin needed for victory.

ESSC trailed 19-11 as the result of having to settle for only one win (Ned Bushong at 130) and four draws (137, 145, 152 and 160), when Al Detweiler stepped on the mats against Frank Scynanski at 177.

But the impressive looking sophomore built up a 4-0 lead on a second period reversal and predicament before pinning Scynanski in 5:59 with a stackup.

This made it 19-16 and the Warrior fans were going wild knowing Red Witman still had Gary Cook and Rich Schumacher, both unbeaten, to rely on.

Cook easily decided Gary Lyons, 7-2, as he gained takedowns in each of the first two periods and gained two points on riding time.

It was then up to Schumacher, who took Gene Funk down in the first period and added two more points on a predicament. An escape and takedown in the second period made it 7-1 before Schumacher pinned Funk in 5:27 with a body press.

Coco trailed 4-1 at one time but came back with an escape and reversal to tie the score at 4-4. But Cruys gained an escape and takedown late in the third period for an 8-5 decision.

It jumped to 8-0 after the 123-pound test when Frank Carrozza pinned Steve Bryant in the third period after piling up a 17-2 lead.

Ko-captain Bushong finally got ESSC on the boards with a 3-1 decision, over a "stalling" John Hart, Bushong rode Hart the entire second period and gained a reversal in the third.

In the next three bouts, Tom Best, Jerry McDonald, and Dan Rossi each had to come from behind to gain draws.

At 137, Best was reversed by Mike Meyer to fall behind 2-0 after two periods. But in the third Best went in front 3-2 on an escape and takedown. Meyer was then awarded a "questionable point" when referee Bob Davis penalized Best for looking his hands. The bout ended in a 3-3 draw.

McDonald, who won a referee's decision over John DeMarco in the Coast Guard Tournament, trailed 2-1 late in the second period. McDonald evened the score with an escape but DeMarco escaped early in the third. DeMarco was then penalized a point for stalling and the bout ended 3-3.

The most exciting bout of the afternoon came at 152 where Rossi trailed Merv Weinberg 6-2 at one stage of the second period. Rossi made it 6-3 late in the second with an escape and added another early in the third. Rossi kept up the pressure and finally with 11 seconds left, took Weinberg down to gain a 6-6 draw.

The 160-pound test ended in a 2-2 draw as sophomore Bob DeVore took Ken Biles of Emmaus down in the first period. Biles rode DeVore the entire second and made it 2-1 with an early escape in the third to end the scoring.

115 — Cruys, WC, decided Coco, 8-5 (3-0).

123 — Carrozza, WC, pinned Bryant in 7:22 (3-0).

130 — Bushong, ES, decided Hart, 3-1 (3-0).

137 — Best, ES, and Meyer, drew, 3-3 (10-1).

145 — McDonald, ES, and DeMarco, drew, 3-3 (12-7).

152 — Rossi, ES, and Weinberg, drew, 6-6 (14-0).

160 — DeVore, ES, and Biles, drew, 2-2 (10-1).

167 — Griscorn, WC, decided Greening, 7-4 (10-1).

177 — Detweiler, ES, pinned Scynanski in 5:59 (10-1).

Baatz stars on defense

TED WISMER
Record Sports Editor

EAST STROUDSBURG — The total points after a player's name in the boxscore often fails to tell just how important a role he played in his team's victory.

Fred Baatz had only four points Saturday night but it was his defensive effort against Millersville's Glen Stitzel that carried the Warriors to an 80-62 upset over the high scoring Mauders.

Stitzel had 44 points when Millersville (10-5) crushed ESSC (9-8) 120-90 in their first meeting earlier in the season. In a more recent outing Stitzel pumped in 58 points against Southeastern.

But Saturday night Baatz stuck to Stitzel like "glue" and limited him to 25 points, but more important only seven field goals. He went almost 13 minutes of the first half without a two-pointer and had only two in the first 20 minutes.

Head coach Ken Sisson said before the game, "we've got to slow down the action. If we try and run with them they'll run us out of the gym."

And except for a couple of lapses that's just what the Warriors did as they worked the ball for only the good shot. Only in the final three minutes when the game was no longer in doubt did ESSC fast break.

Steve Guter, who finished with 23 and Willie Shields, who had 19, accounted for ESSC's first 21 points. In fact it was Guter's three-point play with 9:40 left in the half that put ESSC in front to stay, 16-14.

Leading 23-21, Ben Kizer, who played an outstanding game both on offense and defense (he spelled Baatz in guarding Stitzel), scored on a fast break and John Grobelny made a pair of fouls to make it 27-21 with 5:30 left.

After Joe Schneider's jump cut the lead to 27-23, Guter tapped in a stray shot and Grobelny made one of two fouls. ESSC had a cold spell from the foul line in the final five minutes of the half as they missed a total of six fouls, five of them with the one and one in effect.

The half ended with ESSC leading 36-30 as the Mauders made only two of four fouls in the final 20 seconds.

ESSC continued its pattern in the second half as it outscored the visitors 13-6 in the first five minutes to open a 49-35 advantage.

The Warriors then seemed to let up briefly and Millersville, with Stitzel accounting for seven points, closed the gap to 51-45.

The next seven minutes was all ESSC's as it outscored Millersville, 13-1, and took a 64-46 lead with 7:01 remaining. With 10 minutes left the Mauders lost Schneider on fouls.

Again the Warriors went cold, they missed three straight layups on fast breaks, and Millersville, with Stitzel again doing the damage, narrowed the gap to 64-54.

Weiskopf eagles 72nd to win Andy Williams

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Young Tom Weiskopf, a sentimental favorite with the gallery, knocked in a dramatic shot of about 25 feet for an eagle 3 on the final hole Sunday to win the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

The spectacular finale on a putt that curved and rolled into the hole gave the 25-year-old Weiskopf a four-under-par 68 and a 72-hole score of 273, 15 strokes under par for the four rounds.

It was his first tournament victory since he turned professional four years ago.

The shot broke a three-way deadlock in a daylong struggle for the $30,000 top money with Al Geiberger and Ray Floyd, blocking what had appeared to be an almost certain sudden death playoff.

Floyd had already finished his round with a 67 for 275 and was watching the finish on television at the Torrey Pines Golf Club.

Floyd was 13 strokes under par and Weiskopf and Geiberger, playing in the same threesome, were also 13 under going into the 18th hole.

Weiskopf's approach to the green was short, about 22 feet off the carpet. Dave Hill, third member of the threesome, was in the trap and blasted out. Then came Tom's electrifying finish.

Geiberger followed with a birdie putt which almost went unnoticed in the excitement. It gave him a 69 for 274 and second money of $18,000.

Floyd, who had said a few moments earlier that he had expected one or the other to birdie the hole and break the tie, took it all calmly and left quietly. He collected $11,250.

Jack Nicklaus, who started the round on even terms with Weiskopf and Geiberger, offered a stout challenge but fell back with a 72 for 277. One stroke in front of him was another young pro, Bob Lunn of Sacramento.

Dianne Holum wins second medal

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — The U.S. Olympic team, still ecstatic over Peggy Fleming's smashing triumph in figure skating, got something else to rave about Sunday when Dianne Holum won her second medal of the Winter Games by finishing third in the 1,000-meter speed skating race.

Miss Holum's achievement, however, did not completely overshadow the disappointing performance of Cynthia and Ronald Kauffmann in the compulsory figures of the pairs skating and the fourth loss by the winless U.S. hockey team, this one a 3-2 decision to Canada.

At the same time, France's Jean-Claude Killy took a half step toward gaining a sweep of the three men's Alpine skiing races, posting the fastest time in the first of two giant slalom runs, and Italy's Eugenio Monti, nine-time world champion bobsledder, ended years of frustration by winning his first Olympic gold medal.

The 16-year-old Miss Holum, who finished in a three-way U.S. tie for second in the 500-meter race, became one of three speed skaters to win a second medal in the 1968 games. The others were Carolina Geijssen of the Netherlands, who won the 1,000, and Russia's Ludmila Titova, the runner-up in Sunday's race.

Miss Geijssen, a 20-year-old blonde Amsterdam secretary, flashed across the finish line in one minute, 32.6 seconds, eclipsing the Olympic record of 1:33.2 set in 1964 by Russia's Lydia Skoblikova.

Miss Titova also bettered the old record with a time of 1:32.9, one-half second ahead of Dianne. Ludmila already had won the 500-meter while Carolina was second in the 1,500.

Jenny Fish of Strongsville, Ohio, who was in the 50 triple tie, placed 23rd in the 1,000 in 1:38.4, but Jeanne Ashworth of Wilmington, N.Y., was seventh in 1:34.7 after finishing 19th in the 1,500. Miss Holum was 13th in the 1,500.

"I felt better today than I have for a week," the Northbrook, Ill., school girl said. "I guess I have really thrown off that bout of flu I had a week ago, and my legs felt really great."

"I thought I had a silver again, but at the back of my mind, I always knew that Carolina had to come, and she is in such great form at the moment that I doubt whether anybody could have beaten her. But it is still nice to take home a silver and bronze."

The bronze gave the United States five medals, more than any other country. The total, of course, includes the gold picked up by Miss Fleming Saturday night as she utterly dazzled judges, competitors and spectators and finished a massive 88.2 points ahead of runner-up Gabrielle Seyfert of East Germany.

The Kauffmanns were not so fortunate in opening their bid for a medal in the pairs.

Technical problems with the sound equipment delayed their start three times, and when the music finally started, they began very slowly. The brother and sister from Seattle, Wash., improved as they went but still placed fifth after the compulsory figures and will need a tremendous performance in the free skating Wednesday night to earn a medal.

Russia's Ludmila Belousova and Oleg Protopopov, the Olympic and triple world champions, were in first place and seemed assured of another gold medal. The other two American couples were out of the running. Sandi Sweitzer and Roy Wagelin of Los Angeles were eighth, and Alicia Starbuck and Ken Shelley of Downey, Calif., were 14th.

The U.S. hockey team took a 2-1 lead in the third period, but Marsh Johnston tied the game at 2:28 of the final period and Ray Cadeaux fired the deciding goal past goalie Pat Rupp of Minneapolis at 7:50.

Larry Pleau of Boston and Bruce Riutta of Houghton, Mich., scored for the United States in the first period, but Canadian goalie Wayne Stephenson was hurt at the end of the first period, and Ken Broderick took over, shutting out the Americans the rest of the way.

Killy, the world's best skier, looks as if he might shut out all the other skiers from gold medals, thereby duplicating the feat of Austrian Toni Sailer in 1956.

Jean-Claude, who already has won the downhill, flashed down the 1,800-meter, 70-gate giant slalom course in one minute, 42.72 seconds for a commanding 1.20-second lead over Switzerland's Willy Favre going into Monday's second and final run.

"The race is not over, you know," Killy said. "I had a good run, and the track was in excellent condition. This is the kind of track I like."

If Killy holds the lead in the giant slalom, that will leave the customs official only the special slalom later in the week.

The American contingent made a strong showing in the first run with Jim Heuga of Squaw Valley, Calif., seventh in 1:45.46; Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt., eighth in 1:45.91; Spider Sabich of Kyburz, Calif., 12th in 1:46.34, and Rick Chaffee of Rutland, Vt., 13th in 1:46.44.

Although catching Killy or Favre seems out of the question, Heuga or Kidd conceivably could come up with the bronze.

Kidd was pleased with the way his left ankle, which he hurt last Wednesday, responded, but another problem cropped up. It seems in the same accident he suffered a bruise on his right leg.

The two-man bobsled event, plagued by bad weather finally came to an end with Monti and brakeman Luciano De Paolis winning. Their total time for the four runs was four minutes, 41.54 seconds, the same as that of West Germans Horst Floth and Pepi Bader.

But the Italians were awarded the gold medal because their 1:10.05 on the last run was the fastest over the four runs.

Paul Lamey of Manchester, N.H., and Bob Huscher of Valley Stream, N.Y., placed sixth while Howard Clifton of Elmore, N.Y., and Michael Luce of Keene Valley, N.Y., were 11th.

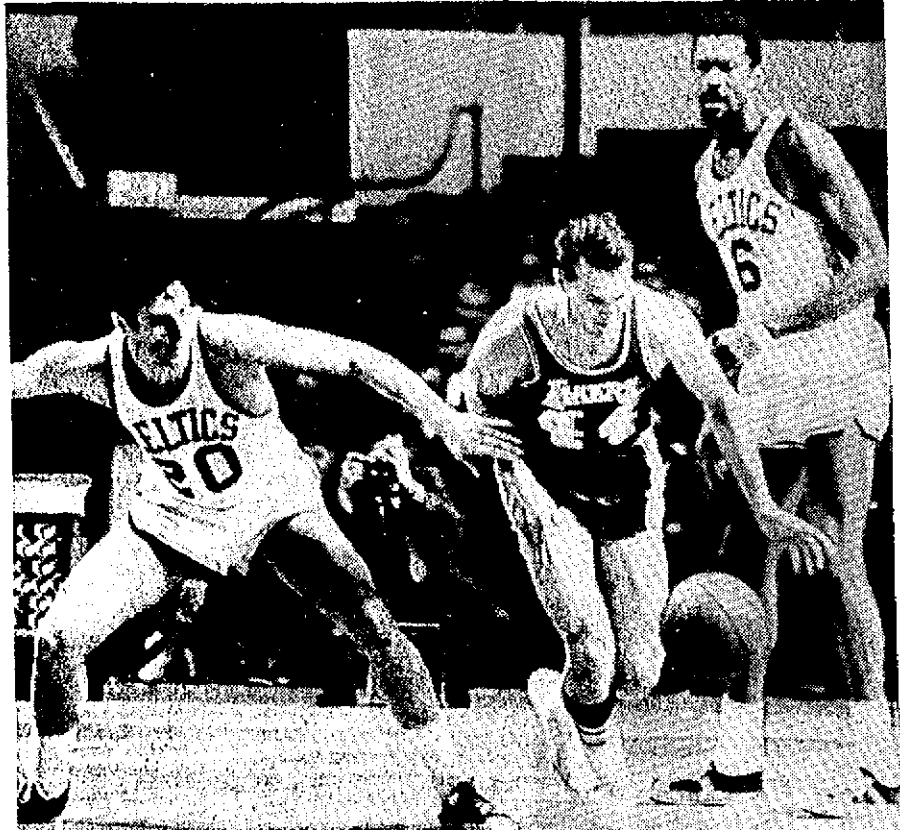

Other gold medals went to Jiri Raska of Czechoslovakia in the 70-meter ski jump and Franz Kreller of West Germany in the Nordic combined ski competition.

Raska jumped 259 and 238 feet for 216.5 points, edging Austrians Reinhold Bachler and Balduz Preml, who took second and third.

Kreller's total of 49.0 points for the ski jump and the 15-kilometer cross-country race was only 1.10 more than the 47.94 compiled by Alois Kaelin of Switzerland. Andreas Kunz of East Germany was third.

John Bower of Middlebury, Vt., was 15th in the combined: Georg Krog of Denver, Colo., 22nd; Jim Miller of Mexico, Maine, 26th, and Tom Upham of Dover, N.H., 39th.

In the 70-meter jump, John Ballanz of Denver was 33rd, Bill Bakke of Madison, Wis., 49th; Jay Rand of Lake Placid, N.Y., 42nd, and Adrian Walt of Duluth, Minn., 44th.

Kentucky is still alive in SEC following upsets

By TED MEIER

Associated Press/Sports Writer
It didn't seem possible a few weeks ago, but maybe this season's University of Kentucky team will win an unprecedented fifth national collegiate basketball championship for Coach Adolph Rupp after all.

The chance for what some would term poetic justice for the so-called Baron of the Bluegrass in the same year that he became the winningest college coach of all time came about Saturday when Georgia upset fifth-ranked Tennessee 61-43 and Louisiana State surprised Florida 93-82 in overtime.

Kentucky, meanwhile, whipped Mississippi State 92-84 and set the stage for a showdown with Tennessee for the Southeastern Conference lead Monday night at Lexington, Ky.

Kentucky now is 9-3 in the SEC to 9-2 for Tennessee and a victory over the Vols Monday would put the Wildcats in first place.

Georgia's Bob Lienhard, a big 6-foot-1 geezer, and LSU's Rich Lupcho, 5-8 runt, played major roles in helping give Kentucky its golden opportunity Monday. Winning the SEC would be the first step along the NCAA tournament trail for the Wildcats.

Lienhard scored 13 points to give Georgia a six-point half-time lead and helped the Bulldogs open a commanding 12-point bulge over the Vols at Athens, Ga.

Lupcho, one of the smallest players in major college basketball this season, sank a free throw point with 15 seconds left to give LSU its upset over Florida at Baton Rouge, La.

Pete Pistol Maravich, the nation's leading scorer, got 47 points for LSU, but it was Lupcho who was triumphantly carried off the floor after the game.

"He played a great defensive game for me," said LSU Coach Press Maravich of Lupcho. "He helped cause Florida to lose their game."

Neal Walk tossed in 38 points for the losing Gators, now beaten four times in the SEC with only an outside chance for the title left.

With Tommy Payne scoring 35 points for Mississippi State, Kentucky had to come from behind for its victory at Starkville, Miss.

Mike Casey's 24 points topped the nationally eight-ranked Wildcats, who didn't take the lead for good at 71-70 until late in the second half.

Elvin Hayes, the Big E of the unbeaten Houston Cougars, No. 1 in The Associated Press poll, went on a 50-point rampage as the Cougars routed Centenary 107-56 at Shreveport, La. Hayes scored 22 field goals and six of nine free throws. In addition, he set a Houston record by grabbing 37 rebounds.

With the exception of fifth-ranked Tennessee and 10th-ranked New Mexico State, the other teams in The AP Top Ten, had little trouble.

UCLA, No. 2, trampled Oregon 104-63 at Eugene, where Lew Alcindor scored 15 points for the current national champs. Larry Miller's 32 points paced No. 3 North Carolina over Virginia Tech at Blacksburg, Va.

Unbeaten St. Bonaventure, No. 4, breezed against Providence 70-56 for its 17th straight.

The bidding:

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
The bridge played in Never-Neverland would unquestionably send shivers down the spines of purists who inhabit our own fair earth.

Conventions are strictly taboo. The game is played on a catch - as - catch - can basis, with no rigid understanding on the meanings of various bids. Everyone bids as the mood moves him. If things turn out right, well and good; if they go wrong, the Neverlandians never kick up a fuss.

The results are often quite odd. The hand shown is perhaps typical of the bridge played. It arose in the daily rubber bridge game at the exclusive Neverland Bridge Club. Of course, no stakes were involved, since monetary exchange is not known in this distant land.

To begin with, the bidding was peculiar. Everyone knows that by our standards the North hand, with 11 points and a good trump fit, rates a stronger response than two spades. But the Neverlandians are more keenly aware of the deficiencies of 4-3-3 distribution than we are. Moreover, point count is completely unknown to the inhabitants.

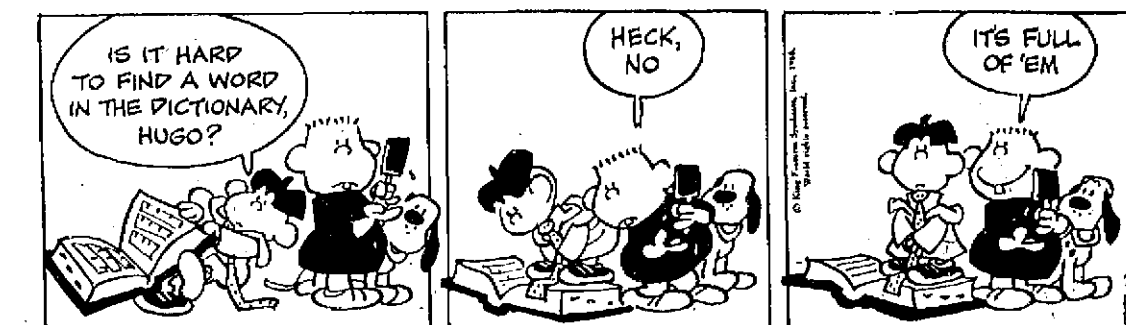

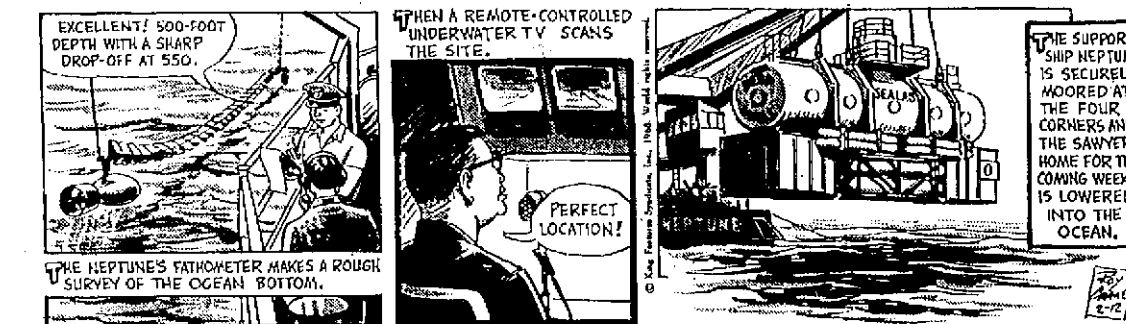

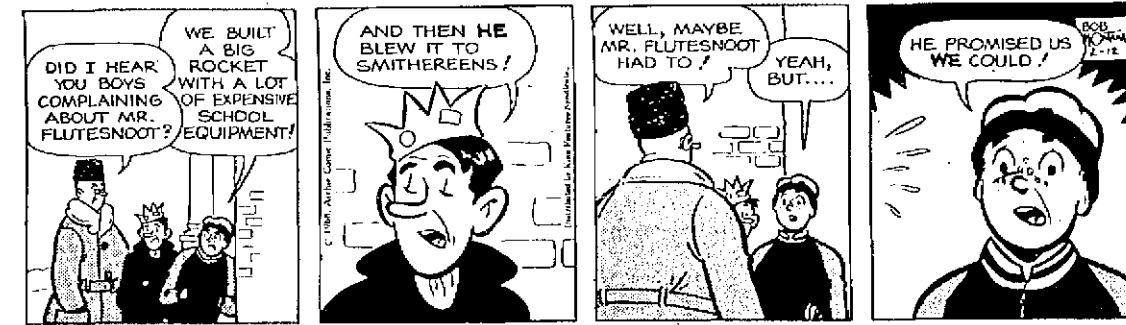

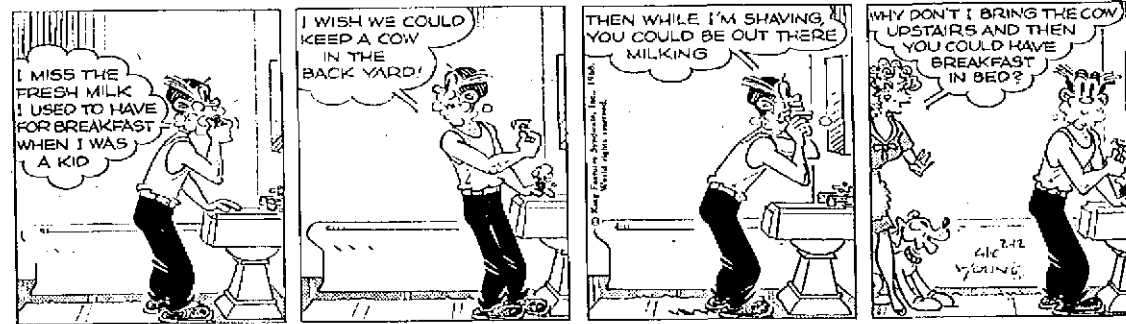

West led the six of diamonds. This shocking (to us) deviation from normal practice is commonplace in Never-Neverland. Underleading a doubleton ace is accepted without the tilt of an eyebrow, as any card can be played at any time at random.

South had no idea which opponent had the ace, so he sucked in dummy and East won with the queen. Naturally, East returned the six of clubs, won by West with the queen.

West now cashed the ace of diamonds and returned a club to East's ace. East returned a diamond and West ruffed, after which West returned a club and East ruffed.

The defense, having already scored six tricks, later got a heart trick also. So South went down two for minus 200.

All of which makes me wonder whether we here on earth play this game of bridge as well as we think we do.

Economic proposals mild

LBJ can't check inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — What's the government going to do about inflation? Not very much, it appears.

People who looked for a novel or dramatic anti-inflation plan in President Johnson's Economic message to Congress last week were disappointed. He came up with a plan for a committee—and with a renewed plea for the 10 per cent surtax which the House Ways and Means Committee has shelved three times.

Some expected Johnson to propose a revision and revitalization of wage-price guidelines. Others looked for a plan to set up an advisory board to give guidance on pending major wage and price decisions.

Nothing so definite was suggested, although the new five-member Cabinet Committee on Price Stability apparently will try to find a substitute for the virtually defunct guidelines.

Meantime, said Johnson, unions and industry should refrain voluntarily from "excessive wage settlements or unnecessary price hikes."

But how can a union negotiator be expected to settle for anything less than he can wrest from an employer, when he knows 1968's inflation will eat away three, four, or possibly five per cent of his unionists' paychecks?

And why should a businessman—unless he has fat profits in sight—be expected to renege last year's prices in his 1968 catalog when he gave a 5.5 per cent wage increase in 1967 and faces another one, perhaps just as big, in 1968?

The fact is, as Johnson's mes-

Gold drops $100 million

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's monetary gold stock dropped $100 million last week to its lowest point in almost 31 years, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York said Thursday.

The drop puts the gold stock at $11,834 billion, lowest since $11,782 billion on April 28, 1937.

This is the first drop reported by the Federal Reserve this year. The nation lost $1.175 billion in 1967 when the British pound devaluation led to a flood of gold speculation on the dollar abroad.

The $100 million drop went into the Treasury's exchange stabilization fund, a special account administered by the New York Federal Reserve Bank for all Treasury gold dealings.

sage acknowledged, that a classic wage-price spiral has been set afloat. And that it cannot be halted in 1968, regardless of higher taxes or anyone's private sacrifices.

It could be slowed by prompt enactment of the surtax, the President told Congress. And if there is also labor-management restraint, reasonable stability may return by 1969 or 1970.

But with business activity heating up "and with labor unions building the expectation of further price rises into their wage demands, there is danger the spiral will accelerate," Johnson said. "The longer it runs the harder it is to stop."

Some congressional critics complain he is trying to stop the runaway with a rubber sword. The Cabinet committee is under orders not to get into any "specific current wage and price matters," but to foster restraint.

U. S. denies nuclear reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House and the Pentagon described as false and ridiculous Friday speculation that the military has sought nuclear weapons for use in Vietnam and is stockpiling them there.

and cooperation among industry, labor and the government, and to undertake these two further assignments:

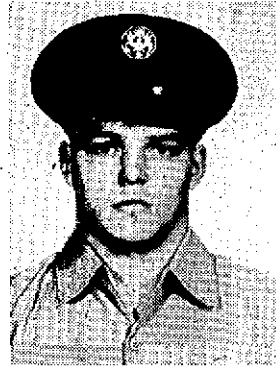

—To seek out causes of inflation in "problem industries," and then to propose special remedies — private, governmental or both.

—To confer with representatives of business, labor and the public "to attempt to reach some consensus on appropriate general standards to guide private price and wage decisions."

But the task of finding and eliminating inflationary hot spots, industry-by-industry, is a long-term undertaking. Some officials say it may help prevent the next inflation but won't help much in cooling this one.

And the quest for a "consensus" on workable and acceptable noninflationary guidelines has been under way — by economists, high officials, foundations, industrial relations experts and the President's Advisory Committee on Labor-Management Policy — for two years or more. The goal hasn't been sighted.

The American consumer may as well buckle down to the hard fact: There's nothing in sight to prevent inflation from eroding his buying power throughout 1968, probably through 1969.

Dr. Gordon K. Danielson

PSU graduate named to Mayo Clinic

STROUDSBURG — Dr. Gordon K. Danielson, Jr., a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, who was married to Miss Sandra Jean Bolich, of Stroudsburg, in 1961, has been appointed to the staff of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minnesota, as head of a section of surgery.

Dr. Danielson was born in Burlington, Iowa. After graduation from the West Chester High School he enrolled in the University of Pennsylvania, from which he received the degree of bachelor of arts in 1953 and that of doctor of medicine in 1955. He was the recipient of a special general four-year scholarship in the University of Pennsylvania, and of the Charles Pfizer and Company scholarship in 1954.

In 1962 and 1963 he was an associate of Dr. Julian Johnson and in 1963 and 1964 he was visiting fellow in the same surgical specialty in the Thoracic Clinic of the Caroline Hospital in Stockholm, Sweden.

From 1962 to 1965 he was an associate in surgery, and in 1965 associate professor of surgery, in the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine.

Dr. Danielson was certified as a specialist in surgery by the American Board of Surgery, Inc., in 1963; and as a specialist in thoracic surgery in the same year by the American Board of Thoracic Surgery, Inc.

Riding club plans June horse show

NEWFOUNDLAND — June will be horse show month in Newfoundland, with the Southern Wayne Trail Riders planning to present a show here during that month. The date will be announced as soon as plans are completed.

Discussing the show during the February meeting of the club held at the home of Daisy Gorb, Gouldsboro, the Trail Riders also heard of the developments and problems concerning the annual horse show at the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Community Fair, as reported by Herbert Peet, who represented the Fair Association.

Members of the club and their guests will join together in a Trail Riders dinner at the Country Hearth Restaurant at Blueberry Hill, Route 191, South Sterling, on February 17 at 8 p. m.

Two new members were welcomed into the club. They are Ronnie Barillo, of Lake Ariel, sponsored by Jim and Doris Dalling, of Shalom Acres, Lake Ariel and Don Mastri, Jr., of Anilam Arabians, Scranton, sponsored by George and Ada Frederici of Shadridge Arabians, Waymart.

IRS advises medical tab checklist

STROUDSBURG — Errors in reporting medical expenses meant smaller refunds, or additional taxes to pay, for many taxpayers last year said Seymour I. Friedman, District Director of Internal Revenue for Eastern Pennsylvania.

To avoid errors on 1967 returns, Friedman advised taxpayers to read the 1040 instruction booklet carefully before they file.

A common error made by taxpayers in reporting medical expenses was in the handling of medicine and drug expenses. These expenses should be added to the taxpayer's other medical expenses only to the extent they exceed one percent of adjusted gross income.

"Some taxpayers," Friedman said, "try to deduct their drug costs in excess of one percent of their income, instead, they should add this excess to their other medical expenses, which are subject to a three percent limitation."

The 1040 instructions explain what is and is not deductible and also how the expenses should be reported.

Changes in the tax law effective for the 1967 tax year are covered in these instructions.

Ann Landers

Solving temper tantrums

Dear Ann Landers: After reading the letter from the father who went to the hardware store and bought a rubber barrel for his kids to kick when they get mad, I decided to tell you how we handled the problem in our family.

We had three young boys to raise and anyone with children knows that hardly a day passes that somebody doesn't get mad. Most of the scraps were minor but every now and then a temper would reach the boiling point. So we made a rule: Anyone who was really angry went to the refrigerator, got an egg and took a walk. He then tried to squeeze the egg in the palm of his hand, trying as hard as he could to break it. Well, Ann, it is nearly impossible to break an egg this way. Pretty soon the squeezer felt awfully foolish. Can you imagine venting all that anger on an egg and not being able to break it? If the ill will wasn't completely dissipated by the time the person got to the big oak tree on the far side of our lot, he was allowed to throw the egg against the tree. If the anger WAS gone, the egg went back in the refrigerator.

We raised three wonderful boys, Ann, and we lost very few eggs.

HEN'S FRIEND

Dear Friend: What a wonderful story. Frankly I was suspicious so I went to the refrigerator and got an egg and tried to break it by squeezing it in the palm of my hand. You were right, I couldn't do it. The things I learn from my readers!

Dear Ann Landers: Four of us women have been playing bridge together for many years. One of the ladies is a darling but her hearing has been getting worse and now I suspect she is as deaf as a post.

Last week the three of us spent most of the afternoon repeating and shouting. This dear lady was playing in a manner which indicated that she did not hear the bidding and she was not aware of what was trump.

We hate to hurt her feelings but it is no longer pleasant to play cards with her. What should be done?

MIXED DEAL

Dear Mixed: One of you kind ladies should take your dear friend aside and tell her that her deafness is apparent and she should see a doctor and learn what can be done about it. There are many excellent hearing aids on the market which could possibly give this woman a new lease on life. Do suggest it. It would be an act of kindness.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 17 who has a real tough problem. I like a certain girl but have never had the nerve to ask her out because I have a terrible case of acne and I don't think I should impose myself on a girl.

Last week the girl I like asked me to a benefit dance. Her mother is chairman and they had some extra tickets. I accepted and was really excited about going at first but now I am wondering if I am being fair to her. Honestly Ann, my face is such a mess it's enough to make a person sick.

Do you think maybe she asked me because she feels sorry for me? Help me see this thing for what it is.

CONFUSED OF N.H.S.
Dear N.H.S.: Most kids who have acne imagine they look a lot worse than they actually do. It could be that the girl hasn't given your acne a thought.

I hope you will go to a skin specialist and follow his instructions. In the last few years the doctors have discovered very good techniques for controlling and curing acne. Get moving and good luck, fella.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
